

Abstract

Electric Food Slicer

An electric food slicer disposable in at least a storable configuration and an operable 5 configuration, comprising a base portion movably connected to an operating portion, wherein the slicer excluding its cutting blade for processing foodstuffs is made principally of plastics or polymeric materials of relatively light weight, and wherein the slicer further comprises a locking means adapted to secure the relative position of the two portions in either said operable configuration or said storable configuration.